

NORTH CAROLINA.

The High Point Enterprise says there is an undercurrent of feeling in Lexington that Mrs. Springs' murder lives in the town.

The consularship at Shanghai, China, held by T. R. Jordan, a North Carolinian, has been given to a Minnesota man, and the consularship at Vancouver, held by General Roberts, another North Carolinian, has been given to a Massachusetts man. North Carolina radicals expected to get both these places.

Beaufort Herald: Rev. T. C. Winecoff, of Chapel Hill, has been invited to deliver the address at the dedicatory ceremony of the Franklin 106 A. F. and A. M. lodge, on July 1st, all who attend will hear a fine oration.—Rev. Mr. Horner, of Hornsboro, St. Paul's Episcopal church last Sunday, Mr. Horner is a scholar and those who heard him pronounce him as an excellent preacher.

Fayetteville Observer: M. E. McLaurin is in the county jail serving a sentence of thirty days for contempt, and though the clerk of the court and the parties to the prosecution are willing for him to be released, it seems that there is no help for him, and he must serve out the sentence.

Betsy Young, for thirty years cook on the Cape Fear river steamer, and held in high esteem by all who knew her, died at her home in Campbellton last night, at an advanced age.

Charlotte Observer: Rev. J. B. Hankins is to leave Charlotte. He has tendered his resignation as pastor of Olivet Baptist church to accept a call to Ozark, Ala. He closes his ministry here the middle of August. Mr. Hankins is a thinker and a scholar.—The subject of the evening at Morehead was: "An Educated Elector." There had been assigned to Editor E. J. Hale, of the Fayetteville Observer and ex-consul to Manchester. The speaker was cheered when he was introduced, and loudly applauded at the close of one of the ablest addresses of the entire assembly session.

Concord Standard: William DeJarnette, a brick mason, the other day, Captain A. H. Propst, is in a bad fix. While engaged in laying a pillar at the new houses at China Grove Thursday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, a small black spider crawled upon his neck and bit him. He worked on for several hours, paying no attention to the bite, but he became sickened and soon had to stop his work. He was taken to his boarding house, where a physician visited him. The man became delirious and remained so until this (Friday) morning, when he was brought here. He says the pains are continual and of the most excruciating kind. He had lost all use of his limbs and was unable to walk.

Wadesboro Messenger: If it were not for the local demand here and elsewhere in this section, it would be impossible for our cotton buyers to pay more than 7 cents for cotton. This shows conclusively that the farmers are greatly benefited by the establishment of factories in the south. Statesville Messenger: A. J. A. of Statesville, while reading Sunday thought of a negro who had not been so thought of for fifteen years. He cannot tell why he thought of him, but he brought him to the negro and some of his antics came into his mind. The strange part of this story is that the gentleman read in Tuesday's Raleigh News and Observer an account of the negro's death on Sunday from a wound inflicted by a white boy with a knife on that day.

Raleigh News and Observer: President Sherman, of the University of North Carolina, will go to Columbia, S. C., June 20, to deliver the annual address before the University of South Carolina graduates. This address will be given at the University of South Carolina, where he will be congratulated.—Colonel A. B. Andrews will leave for New York Saturday to take charge of the office of the president of the Southern Railway for the next two months in order that President Spencer may take a vacation. It will be remembered that last year President Spencer went to Europe for some three months and at that time Colonel Andrews who is first vice president of the Southern Railway, had complete charge of the system.

Mrs. Wells says she is going to spend a large part of the summer at home in a city, said Mr. Cumrox, reproachfully. "Yes," replied his wife. "She can afford it. ## PUBLIC OPINION.

Mr. Morgan has introduced in the senate a bill to annex Hawaii, which is designed to bring the Sandwich islands under the dominion of the United States, treaty or no treaty, by March 4, 1898, or earlier if congress so decides. Mr. Morgan says that his bill is intended to carry the annexation treaty into execution in case it shall be ratified by the senate, or to provide for its ratification by the joint action of the two houses in case the senate shall refuse to act. "The treaty," he says, "can be ratified in this form, by a majority vote in each of the two houses, thus avoiding the necessity for securing two-thirds of the senate, as would be required if the matter should be passed upon by that body alone." So far as procedure goes, Mr. Morgan would seem quite justified in his attempt. There is nothing in the constitution which says that countries must be annexed by treaty.—New York Evening Post.

It is undoubtedly true that the geographical position of Hawaii is such that it concerns the interest of the United States to prevent her forming any connection with any other foreign power. And our government announced to the world at a very early period that while itself scrupulously regarding the independence of the Hawaiian islands, it could never consent to see those islands taken possession of by either of the great commercial powers of Europe, nor could it consent that demands manifestly unjust, derogatory and inconsistent with a bona fide independence should be enforced against the Hawaiian government. This was the position advanced by Mr. Webster when secretary of state in 1842, and again assumed by him when he was secretary of state in 1851. Nevertheless, the administration of General Pierce, while stoutly proclaiming that it would be the duty of the United States to prevent Hawaii from becoming the appendage of any other foreign power, looked with a certain favor upon the islands becoming a part of our own territorial sovereignty. But the question of annexation found no favor with any subsequent administration until the administration of General Harrison.—Philadelphia Record.

The threatened manipulation again of the prices of meat by the beef trust is another of those conscienceless and heartless actions by the big combines that arouse and intensify the popular indignation against these monopolies. It matters not to the trusts that the articles upon which the prices are raised by shrewd manipulations are the food products of the country. As great and far reaching as is the meat business of the United States four men, the "big four," practically control it. They virtually control the sources of supply and it is possible for them at almost any time to put the price of cattle and hogs down and the prices of dressed meat up. In the present instance, it is stated that the cattle are to be bought, or have already been bought, in large numbers from the western producers, preparatory to tying up the market and then by holding the supply back run up the prices of meat of all kinds. By concerted action between Armour, Swift, Hammond and Morris, the scheme is comparatively easy, and the manipulation of prices both for cattle and dressed meats a foregone conclusion. This is a dismal task, indeed, in which to increase the cost of such an article as meat to the poorest classes of the country. While thousands of people are in distress these heartless beef trust speculators would render it even more difficult to obtain the necessary food!—Houston Post.

FUN

There is a Second Avenue woman who will hereafter require reference from the man who sells her vegetables. She is recently married and a novice in housekeeping. When the honest looking granger with garden "truck" called the other morning, he realized upon his long experience. "Are these cucumbers strictly new?" she asked with the off-handed air of a veteran. "They backed them about two hours ago," he responded promptly, despite the recent frosts. "How about these strawberries?" "The ones on the vines just afore sunrise, mum." "Can you recommend these eggs?" "Raised 'em on my own farm, mum." "What is this stuff?" "Sparagus, mum, dug jist after breakfast." "Why one you have bananas. Are they best grade?" "Every one of 'em Michigan raised, mum. My neighbor has the finest banana vineyard in the state. I'm starting a banana business. I'm offering you won't keep a couple of weeks, and it's allus cheaper to buy in quantity." "I'll take two in family, but she took pretty nearly the whole cargo, and the next day the granger came back to call twice at her place. The cucumbers were tough, the strawberries soft, the asparagus stringy, the bananas rusty, and the eggs out-of-date since early spring. Now she spends her days sitting in the bay window looking for the man who, her husband assures her, must be a market peddler. When she finds him there is going to be trouble.—Detroit Free Press.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

After digesting the remarks of Secretary Gage one is led to wonder just what that bimetallic commission is doing abroad.—Washington Post. Colonel Watterson will have to go off and get an L. L. D. attachment to his name before he can secure any recognition from Dr. Cleveland.—Washington Post.

It is said that the rise in speculative stocks is a sign of prosperity. Yes; just as much of a sign as the sale of 45,000,000 bales of cotton in the cotton exchange was the sign of a 25,000,000 crop of cotton last year.—Atlanta Constitution.

Tillman gives as his excuse for voting for a tariff on raw cotton that he was "a hill 'banded" so as to kill the republican party. When the democratic party begins to use that gun loaded with that kind of ammunition, it is liable to blow out the breech and scatter.—Houston Post.

The gall and mendacity of some of the eastern republican papers surpasseth understanding. They are claiming the democratic lost ground in the recent election in the First congressional district of Missouri, when as a matter of fact the democratic gains were large and pronounced.—Houston Post.

A Cutting Affray.

Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock two negro boys, Johnnie Crokan and Willie Morris, alias Monk, got into a dispute over a stand which they had purchased jointly for the purpose of shining shoes. Crokan tired of the partnership and went down yesterday morning and demanded that his partner buy him out or sell out to him. Morris refused to do either and they got into a difficulty in front of Morrison & Co.'s bank, on Front street. Morris picked up a broom and struck Crokan. They then went into Colonel Roger Moore's alley, where they renewed the fight. In the difficulty Crokan cut Morris severely in the left thigh, and Morris then struck Crokan with a brick and cut a bed gash on his ear and made a bruise on the side of his head. Neither of the parties have been arrested.

A Bold Robbery.

Yesterday morning between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock, a burglar entered the residence of Captain J. B. Huggins, who resides on Dock street between Seventh and Eighth streets. He climbed upon a back shed by means of a ladder and stepped through a window in a room occupied by three young ladies. They fortunately heard the noise and one screamed, whereupon Mr. Ed. Huggins, who was sleeping in an adjoining room, hearing the alarm and rushed to their protection. The burglar beat a hasty retreat and never had a chance to carry off anything. Mr. G. W. Branch's residence was also entered yesterday morning before day. His pants were carried out and robbed of a sum of money. The pants were found in the yard yesterday morning.

North Carolina at the Great Reunion. The Nashville (Tenn.) Sun, in its account of the great parade at the reunion of confederate veterans at Nashville June 24th, says in its issue of the 25th:

"North Carolina was in evidence and made a most magnificent show. The drum corps from Winston, which was at the head of the division, contributed its share to the parade. Miss Nannie Branch Jones, the sponsor, and her maids of honor were enthusiastic and patriotic. They sang all along the line that grand old song, 'The Old North State.'"

The North Carolina division was commanded by Major General W. L. DeRosier, accompanied by his staff, Colonel Junius Davis, adjutant general and chief of staff; Colonel W. J. Woodward, quartermaster general; Major Henry London, aide de camp.

The brigades were commanded by Brigadier Generals J. G. Hall, William London and Frank M. Barker. The sponsor, Miss Nannie Branch Jones, Raleigh, N. C., and her maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Christopher Hinsdale, followed the major general and his staff.

"There were thirty camps in line, with a membership of 600 veterans."

The Triumphant Rabbit

(Westminster Gazette.) The rabbit continues its ravages in Australia, and the efforts to exterminate it. In seven years New South Wales has expended £231,457 in fighting the pest, while since 1890 556 miles of barrier rabbit proof fence has been erected at a cost of £50,000. But to little purpose. And what is most alarming is that the rabbit is reported to be developing new and alarming capacities. It can climb trees and fences, crawl through meshes of wire fences supposed to be rabbit proof, and generally triumph over all the arts employed against it. Queensland is trying, with great patience, to enlist battalions of microbes in the warfare against the all-invasive rabbit. The bacillus of Pasteur's chicken cholera is cultivated, and concealed in pellets of pollard, and these are to be scattered over the country. But will the rabbits eat them?

FOURTH OF JULY RACES.

The Carolina Yacht Club preparing for a Grand Time Next Monday—Canoe, Yacht and Surf Races in the Programme. The Carolina Yacht Club is preparing for a grand celebration for Monday next.

The recent laws adopted by the club provide for a canoe class and the first event of the day will be a canoe race among canoes of the club for a prize and a champion flag, to be offered by the club. The race will be called for 10:30 o'clock a. m. and will be sailed over part of the club course in the Banks channel.

The regular yacht race will be sailed over the club course and will be called for 12 o'clock. This hour is necessary, as it is high water at 1 o'clock. There will be eight or nine yachts in this race and an unusual amount of interest is already being manifested. Among the larger boats which will be entered are the Vixen, Vitesse and the Nixie, and between these fast boats there is certain to be a close race.

The time allowance of the Long Island Racing Union will be given the small boats, and this, it is believed, will put them all very close together at the finish. There will be two handsome prizes offered for this race, and the champion flag of the club will also be awarded the winner.

At 4:30 o'clock p. m. there will be an exciting race between the different fishing crews of the sound and beach. Two money prizes will be offered by the club. The race will start in front of the club house and will be around a stake boat in the ocean about half a mile from shore. These boats will go out and come in through the surf, and the most expert seamanship is required to successfully accomplish this without swamping.

At 5 o'clock all the prizes won at the different races will be presented and there will no doubt be a tremendous crowd present to witness the ceremony.

Three Senators Ill

Washington, June 28.—The condition of Senator Pettigrew, who was taken ill in the senate Saturday evening, continues to improve. His physician believes he will be able to resume his senatorial duties in a few days.

Hanged by a Mob

Aberdeen, Miss., June 28.—A negro named Parry Gilliam, was forcibly taken from the Monroe county jail late last night, carried five miles from town and hung to a tree in the middle of the big road, where his body was found early this morning. He was the negro charged with having robbed a white woman at Okolona Saturday afternoon and attempted a criminal assault upon her. He was recognized by her out of a party of half a dozen arrested, as being the guilty person. The present and White Plains, so that he may make a good showing in his six-round bout with Fitzsimmons on July 10th. Nobody expects him to get into the best of trim on such short notice, but the indications are that he will be able to give the champion a good argument for six rounds.

Weyler Calls for More Troops

Chicago, June 28.—A special to The Chronicle from Jacksonville, Fla., says: Weyler, while at Cienfuegos, made a request for 20,000 colonial volunteers with the intention of starting an active campaign. He has also demanded from Spain 10,000 additional troops to reach Cuba by September 1st. The rainy season will be drawing to a close at this time, and this goes to prove the assertion that he will make the effort of his life to conquer the insurgents. The announcement that the light general Gomez would begin active operations has been verified.

Sullivan in Heavy Training

New York, June 28.—John L. Sullivan is working like a beaver at Muldoon's resort, near White Plains, so that he may make a good showing in his six-round bout with Fitzsimmons on July 10th. Nobody expects him to get into the best of trim on such short notice, but the indications are that he will be able to give the champion a good argument for six rounds.

THE SIXTH AT GETTYSBURG.

A Letter From the Late Colonel S. McD. Tate to Governor Vance, Written the Night After His Famous Charge.

(Special Correspondence.) Messenger Bureau, Park Hotel, Raleigh, N. C., June 28.

In Governor Vance's war letter books appears the following letter from Colonel S. McDowell Tate, commanding the Sixth North Carolina regiment. It is dated July 8, 1862: "In Bivouac, near Hagers-town, Md., and is just now of special interest:

My Dear Governor—Excuse the necessity of writing with pencil and the familiarity with which I address you, but moments are precious and while I am yet spared I must hasten to perform a sacred duty to you as the honored head of North Carolina and to her brave citizen soldiers, especially those under my command. The great reason for this is the fact that it was North Carolinians only who succeeded in entering the enemy's works at Gettysburg; that our brigade commander was slain and we have no friends who will tell of our success on the night of the 2nd of July, because all but the Sixth Regiment failed. Our brigadier General Hoke, being absent, was wounded since the battle of Fredericksburg. 4th of May, Colonel Avery was acting in his stead. Lieutenant Colonel Witt, absent, sick in Virginia, left me in command of the Sixth in the Pennsylvania campaign, but this with the fear of being suspected of a desire to claim more on that account shall not deter me for complying with a promise I have made the regiment to acquaint you, as their governor, with the truth, that history may hereafter speak truly of them. Let me say at once that I desire nothing and wish no notoriety, but I do want the glorious band of veterans in this regiment to be appreciated and honored at home. They are rapidly passing away, but North Carolina will have reason to point with pride to their gallant deeds.

"On the 1st of July the confederate army made a general attack on the enemy posted in front of Gettysburg. Of Early's Division, the Louisiana and the two brigades were advanced to charge the enemy behind fences. It was rapidly done (and as is our usual fortune, immediately in our front it was a stone fence, the enemy driven before us through the town to their fortified heights behind. In this charge we lost a number of our officers and men (more than the balance of the brigade) and captured a battery near the fence. This battery will be credited to Early's Division—see if it does not. Virginia and Georgia brigades were held in reserve. Next day (2nd) we were ordered (Louisiana and North Carolina brigades) to charge the heights. Now it is proper to say there are a series of heights, upon which the enemy had been driven from all around. Longstreet charged on the south face and the two Louisiana brigades of Hay's brigade scaled the walls and planted the colors of the Sixth North Carolina and Ninth Louisiana on the guns. It was now a deadly duel. The enemy stood with a tenacity never before displayed by them, and with bayonets, clubbed muskets, sword and pistol and rocks from the walls we cleared the place and silenced the guns. In vain did I send to the rear for support. It was manifest that I could not hold the place without the aid of the enemy's muskets and the ravines and adjoining heights and we were fully half a mile from our lines. Finding the enemy were making up a line ordered the small band of heroes to fall back from the crest to a stone wall on the side of the hill, where we awaited their coming. So the day was over and now came the question of surrender or retreat? There was a calm and determined resolve never to surrender one of our North Carolina regiments but done the day before) and under cover of the darkness I ordered the men to break and risk the life and lose the honor of the regiment getting out. On arriving at our lines I demanded to know why we had not been supported, and was coolly told it was not known where we were the works. "I have no doubt the major general will report the attack of the works by Hoke's and Hays' brigades, which could not be taken. Such monstrous injuries and de-precation of our efforts is calculated to be of serious injury, and then always to divide the honors due to us among our victorious allies, a liberality which has been shown in certain cases. Of course the reports are not written out, but I know the disposition so well that I look for no special mention of our regiment while it is the only one in the Army of Northern Virginia which did go in and silence the guns of the heights and what is more I have a support of a brigade had been sent up to us the slaughter of A. P. Hill's corps, on the day following, would have been prevented, 2nd still have 2nd and Col. Avery, a gallant officer, fell in front of the heights, mortally wounded. He died thirty-six hours afterward.

"This regiment has had a reputation, you know, and I fear no harm to it while any are left, but it is due the noble dead as well as the living that it should be noticed in some way. I assure you it is no sensation or fancy picture. Such a fight as they made in front and in the fortifications has never been equalled on the side of the enemy were left lying in great heaps and almost all with bayonet wounds, and many with skulls broken by the creches of our rifles. We left not a living man of our enemy on the hill.

"I write this now, for fear I will not live to write at leisure hereafter. With your sense of propriety I cannot say more than that this cannot be exactly an official document, for it has no form, but bearing no ending, but it is a simple story badly told. All we ask is, don't let old North Carolina be derided, while her sons do all the fighting."

Thrown From a Horse

It matters not from what cause the blood becomes poisoned, it is impossible for the doctors to effect a cure. This class of disease has puzzled the science of medicine for ages, and the same treatment that was employed centuries ago is now prescribed. Potash and mercury are the component parts of every doctor's prescription for diseases of the blood.

Many of the so-called blood purifiers are based on potash and mercury. In fact, S. S. S. (Swift's Specific) is the only blood remedy that is guaranteed purely vegetable, and is the only one that contains no harmful ingredients. S. S. S. is the only blood remedy that cures real blood diseases, obnoxious cases that physicians and other remedies have failed to cure. It never fails to cure a blood disease—no matter how deep-seated the case.

Miss Bertha Whitwood. Mr. H. Kuhn, of Marion, Kansas; writes:

"About three years ago my granddaughter, Bertha Whitwood, was thrown from a horse, receiving a wound of the scalp. Under the treatment of physicians the wound seemed obstinate, and for several months remained about the same, until it finally became very angry looking, and broke out into a running sore. This soon spread to other parts of the scalp, and ran down the side of the neck, increasing in severity, and fearfully disfiguring her.

"After being constantly under a physician for a year, and her condition a great deal worse than at first, we placed her under the care of the faculty of a well-known hospital, but even the treatment she received there failed to arrest the terrible sore.

"Reading of the many cures of blood troubles effected by S. S. S., we decided to try it, and it relieved her promptly. At first this remedy seemed to increase the discharge, forcing out the poison; this soon ceased altogether, and the place began to heal. In a few months she was entirely cured, and scarcely a mark now remains where the disease held full sway."

"S. S. S. is the right remedy for all blood diseases, and is the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Eczema, Cancer, Rheumatism, Catarrh, etc., no matter how deep-seated the case. S. S. S. is guaranteed
